Valkyries lock up first place

Good fight. Provincial rivalry comes out a little more even as Riot score the most points any team has ever managed against the Valkyries

JEFF MACKEY
Metro in Regina

The latest chapter in the Western Women's Canadian Football League's (WWCFL) battle of Saskatchewan has come to an end.

The Saskatoon Valkyries beat the Regina Riot 36-16 on Taylor Field Sunday. This locked up first place in the Prairie Conference for the Valkyries and guaranteed them home-field advantage for the upcoming playoffs.

The Valkyries have proved to be an unstoppable force in the WWCFL — they took home the championship last year and are undefeated since the league began. This has made the battle of Saskatchewan a rather one-sided affair.

Quoted

"For us it was interesting to see how much they have improved since the first game of the year and how much we improved."

Valkyries head coach Jeff Yausie

The Valkyries came out strong in the first half and they picked apart the Riot's defense. Regina's offence also took a while to warm up and by the end of the first half, the score was Valkyries 28, Riot 3.

The second half saw the Riot kick into gear — they scored two touchdowns to the Valkyries' one and the game finished at 36-16.

"For us it was interesting to see how much they have improved since the first game of the year and how much we improved," said Valkyries head coach Jeff Yausie. "A great crowd came out to see all the Saskatchewan players play a real physical game."

Sunday's game may signal that the Prairie rivalry is becoming a little more even. The Riot's 16 points were the most any team has ever scored against the Valkyries. Also, the Valkyries' 36 points ties for a team low in offensive production.

"It was small victories for us all around," said Riot head coach Jon Baxter. "We have always known that we could play with the Valkyries and completely dominating and outscoring them in that second half was just monstrous for us."

Both teams will now enter the playoffs as first and second seed. If successful there, it is entirely possible that they may meet again in Saskatoon for the Prairie finals.

Support. Fatal shooting of three guards on Alberta campus resonates strongly across provincial borders

morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

Jared Brown, president of the University of Saskatchewan Students' Union, was "extremely saddened" by the recent shootings at the University of Alberta and said he'll be contacting the U of A Students' Union to show his support.

"I haven't been able to meet with the U of A union yet, but I will be reaching out to them when I go back to work tomorrow," Brown said.

"I'm going to send them an email and express my concern for them and just say, 'I hope you guys are doing well' and let them know that the University of Saskatchewan has their back and see if there's anything we can do in a more formal or informal sense."

Brown said even though the incident happened on a campus in the province next door, as a student body president it still resonates strongly with him.

"It makes you think," Brown said. "It freaks you out that something like that can actually happen. It could happen anywhere."

Brown also said the recent shooting will influence some of the questions he asks while sitting on the hiring committee for the new director of campus safety.

"I think now new questions are going to be raised — How is our text service working? Are we able to get the word out to the students quickly? … Hopefully, we can look at the things that we're doing right, right now, and if they're not up to speed, we may have to take another look at all of the practices on how we keep people safe."

The shootings were said to have happened during the armed robbery of a G4S armoured vehicle at the U of A's Hub Mall. Three guards, Michelle Shegelski, Brian Ilesic and Eddie Rejano, were killed and a fourth, Matthew Schuman, was seriously injured.

Travis Baumgartner CONTRIBUTED

The suspect in the murders, 21-year old Travis Baumgartner, was apprehended Saturday at the U.S. border following what the Edmonton Police Service called an "intense 36-hour manhunt."

In a statement, G4S said it "applauded" the Edmonton Police Service and other agencies and it will continue to work with them throughout the investigation.

Police chief eases aboriginal community's concerns

A meeting held over the weekend between the Aboriginal Affairs Coalition of Saskatchewan (AACS) and Saskatoon Police Service Chief Clive Weighill about racial profiling yielded positive results, says AACS president Kim Beaudin.

"This was an opportunity for aboriginal people to have a one-on-one with the chief of police," Beaudin said. "That kind of forum is very important for the relationship, so we're going to continue to do that.

"We believe it's an excellent time for him to address any concerns and to hear from the community. Communication is a two-way street."

Beaudin also said the meeting was an opportunity for those who were intimidated by the SPS to communicate with police in an environment outside of a meeting on the street.

"If any issues come up, he'll be hearing about it front and centre, because most of the people who come to the meetings are people who live in the community. They're grassroots people and a lot of them have stated that they felt uncomfortable talking to the police, and this gave them that venue to do that."

There were a few people on hand to tell their stories of racial profiling, but the majority of the discussion focused on social issues, Weighill said.

"There was quite a wide variety in the discussion," he said. "It provided me an opportunity to provide information on the progress being made regarding aboriginal relations and also to explain the complaint system if anyone has a complaint against our service."

Both Beaudin and Weighill said the message taken away from the meeting by those in attendance was that the SPS is willing to hear complaints from the aboriginal community. Beaudin said the AACS will bring those concerns forward as they arise.

"Our organization will provide that bridge to the Saskatoon Police Service," said Beaudin. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

One man, two horses, 16,000 kilometres

Long rider. Equestrian adventurer making documentary of his journey to Brazil

JANE CAULFIELD
jane.caulfield@metronews.ca

Filipe Leite knows his upcoming journey will be a test of body, mind and spirit. He knows it will take him nearly two years to reach his final destination. And he knows everyone thinks he's crazy.

But that won't stop him from following through on his goal of riding a horse from Calgary to Sao Paulo, covering 12 countries and 16,000 kilometres.

"What I fear for the most is my horses' health," Leite said, "because what I am doing is taking a very selfish route in asking these two quarter horses to ride with me for two years to educate people about animal rights and human rights, while making a documentary film at the same time."

Leite, 25, is a second-generation cowboy who was born in Brazil and moved at a young age to Toronto with his family. His love for riding comes from his father, who used to bring rodeos to Brazil.

But Leite, who is a journalist by trade, will combine his love for horses with a love for documenting the stories people have to tell.

"Long riders have said that they've regained their trust in humanity because people will bend over backwards to help you. So when I started doing the research, I thought, 'Hey, why not document this?'"

Leite has joined with the NGO Journalists for Human Rights and will be stopping at schools along the way to talk to students about human-rights issues in the Americas.

"My whole life, I've wanted to strive for a better world. But it's hard to know where to start. That's what this is."

Leite says while he is riding for human rights, his horses will be trekking for the respect they deserve.

"I'm actually giving these horses a reason. Of course, you do it with their health in mind. My route is being drawn out with the horses' health in mind."

Leite's two horses were donated by Copper Spring Ranch and Weaver Quarter Horses, both in Montana.

His journey starts on July 8 at 1 p.m. at the Calgary Stampede.

Readers can track Leite's progress at journeyamerica.ca.

Horse odyssey

Man in the saddle

In preparation, Leite has been seeking advice from members of the Long Riders' Guild. He was recently in Saskatchewan learning from legendary long rider Bernice Ende.

"She gave me some great advice. She told me what to do about saddle sores, what she eats. It was nice. She really gave me some perspective." JANE CAULFIELD/METRO

Rodney King dies in apparent drowning

Obituary. The acquittals of the cops involved in King's 1991 beating sparked the L.A. riots that left 55 dead

Rodney King, the black motorist whose 1991 videotaped beating by Los Angeles police officers was the touchstone for one of the most destructive race riots in U.S. history, was found at the bottom of his swimming pool early Sunday and later pronounced dead. He was 47.

King's fiancée called police to report that she found him in the pool at their home in Rialto, Calif., police Lt. Dean Hardin said.

Police Capt. Randy De Anda said King had been by the pool throughout the early morning and had been talking to his fiancée, who was inside the home at the time. A statement from police said the preliminary investigation indicates a drowning, with no signs of foul play.

The 1992 riots, which were set off by the acquittals of the officers who beat King, lasted three days and left 55 people dead, more than 2,000 injured and swaths of Los Angeles on fire. At the height of the violence, King pleaded on television: "Can we all get along?"

King, a 25-year-old in 1991 on parole from a robbery conviction, was stopped for speeding on March 3, 1991. He was on parole and had been drinking — he later said that led him to try to evade police.

Los Angeles police officers hit him more than 50 times with their batons, kicked him and shot him with stun guns.

A man who had quietly stepped outside his home to observe the commotion videotaped most of it and turned a copy over to a TV station. It was played over and over for the following year, inflaming racial tensions across the U.S.

It seemed that the videotape would be the key evidence to a guilty verdict against the officers, whose trial was moved to a predominantly white suburb. Instead, a jury with no black members acquitted three of the officers on state charges in the beating; a mistrial was declared for a fourth.

Violence erupted immediately, starting in South Los Angeles. Police, seemingly caught off-guard, were quickly outnumbered by rioters and retreated. As the uprising spread, shop owners armed themselves and engaged in running gun battles with looters.

Civil rights leader Al Sharpton said in a statement that King was a symbol of the civil and anti-police brutality movement. "History will record that it was Rodney King's beating and his actions that made America deal with the excessive misconduct of law enforcement." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Radiohead. Inspectors probe stage collapse that left one dead, three injured

People read an information sign after a Toronto stage collapse left Radiohead's drum technician dead. NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Inspectors with Ontario's Ministry of Labour spent Sunday combing through the wreckage of a stage that collapsed on Saturday during setup for a Radiohead concert in Toronto.

They're trying to find out what caused the stage to come crashing down on a handful of workers, killing one and injuring three others.

Radiohead representative Laura Eldeiry confirmed the man killed was Scott Johnson, the drum technician for the British band.

Toronto police Const. Tony Vella says another man who suffered non-life-threatening injuries is doing "much better" in hospital.

Ministry spokesman Matt Blajer says the massive structure is "still fairly unstable" and work is underway to make it safe. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Arbitrator sides with Air Canada in contract dispute

Collective agreement. The deal maintains the defined-benefit pension plan for current employees but includes pension changes for new hires

Priority

Air Canada has been engaged in an often bitter labour dispute with most of its unionized employees in recent months.

- The resolution of outstanding labour contracts is being seen as significant as it could decide Air Canada's ability to launch a low-cost carrier — currently a top priority at the airline.

A long-standing labour dispute between Air Canada and its unionized repair and ramp crews came to an end Sunday when a federal arbitrator sided with the country's largest carrier and selected its final offer to establish a collective agreement.

The new five-year deal marks an end to 14 months of negotiations and mediated talks between the Montreal-based airline and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

It also means there is only one of the airline's major unions that is still without a collective agreement. The airline's 3,000 pilots are still in the process of working through their dispute with a federal arbitrator. The threat of a lockout of pilots, and a strike notice from the Machinists, had prompted the federal government to intervene with back-to-work legislation in both disputes. The law allowed federally appointed arbitrators to impose settlements within 90 days.

The deal imposed by arbitrator Michel Picher on Sunday maintains the current defined-benefit pension plan for current employees but includes pension changes for any new hires. It also contributes to the reduction of the pension deficit and establishes a protocol for the sustainability of the pension plan, taking into account any short-term funding pressures on the company, a statement from the airline said.

"The airline will not have further comment as details of the new collective agreement are being communicated to its employees," the airline said.

Tough toys. Mega Brands to battle Lego products in construction-toy aisle

A battle could be shaping up in the construction-toy aisles as Canadian toy maker Mega Brands takes a run at industry leader Lego by introducing a series of new products appealing to young girls, boys and adult collectors.

North American retailers are cautious about adding untested brands in the face of a weak Christmas buying season and continuing softness early in the year.

But Mega Brands CEO Marc Bertrand said Friday the company has the products customers are looking for to drive sales and further expand the construction category, the toy industry's fastest growing segment.

CIGARETTES WILL KILL PEOPLE NO MATTER HOW BIG THE LAWSUIT IS

URBAN COMPASS
Paul Sullivan
saskatoon@metronews.ca

The Saskatchewan government chose to celebrate May 31 as World No Tobacco Day, joining the gang of other provinces suing the tobacco industry for all smoking-related health-care costs.

If the case goes the way it went in the U.S., where 46 states were able to extract $206 billion from seven tobacco companies, the payoff should be pretty big.

You could argue that the payoff is already pretty big. In 2010-11, the Saskatchewan government hauled in $235.1 million in tax revenues from tobacco sales, and the entire take, federal and provincial, was $7.538 billion.

Oh, by the way, tobacco kills. Approximately 40,000 Canadians fall to smoking-related deaths each year, which surpasses the total number of murders, alcohol-related deaths, car accidents and suicides.

Tough to inhale

"So here you have the foremost beneficiaries of the world's most dangerous substance suing their suppliers while they continue to reap the benefits over the dead bodies of their citizens."

Tobacco killed 100-million people in the 20th century, rivalling Hitler, Stalin, Mao and Pol Pot as the century's biggest murderer.

So here you have the foremost beneficiaries of the world's most dangerous substance suing their suppliers while they continue to reap the benefits over the dead bodies of their citizens.

To make the situation even more ludicrous, these same sin-tax junkies continue to vigorously prosecute the outlaw suppliers of relatively benign substances such as ecstasy and marijuana, while continuing to rake in the revenues from tobacco and alcohol, arguably the world's second most dangerous substance.

I don't pretend to understand any of this. While there is no doubt the tobacco companies knew that tobacco is a potent poison, they did their best to obscure and twist the evidence throughout the period outlined in the suit. Who's going to sue the government, which is a whole lot more responsible for the well-being of its people than the tobacco companies? Big Tobacco is just a big fat pathological liar; we elect governments to protect us from big fat pathological liars.

Tobacco has cut a huge swath through my family, including my own father and grandfather, both sons of Saskatchewan. I smoked myself until Easter Sunday 1977 when I resurrected myself, as no one else was going to. I still battle the effects of my adventure with tobacco that ended 35 years ago.

The trouble is that all of us knew what we were doing. Like the tobacco companies, the government, my granddad and father, I knew that smoking caused cancer. James I of England knew that smoking was bad for your health in 1604.

We all knew, but we went ahead anyway. So, if the government really cares about the people of Saskatchewan, they'll stop it now. Because someone in this country still dies every 12 minutes from smoking, no matter how much blood money we get from the tobacco companies.

Worth mentioning

How much would you pay for fresh air?

As traditional measures of economic progress like GDP are criticized for ignoring downsides including pollution or diminishment of resources such as fresh water or fossil fuels, there has been an increased urgency to arguments for a more balanced and accurate reckoning of costs.

That is particularly so as fast-developing nations such as India and China jostle with rich nations for access to those resources and insist on their own right to pollute on a path toward growth.

Proponents of so-called "green accounting" — who will gather in Rio de Janeiro this week for the Rio Earth Summit — hope that putting dollar values on resources will slam the brakes on unfettered development.

Rainforest frog woos photog with fungus

Is this delightful little frog actually a handsome prince in disguise? This sprightly red-eyed tree frog looks as if he is offering a flower to court someone. Photographer Megan Lorenz, who took this snap deep in the Costa Rican rainforest, explains to Metro the illusion behind the amusing scene.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Lorenz on tree frog

- Fungus. "We (captured) a number of red-eyed tree frogs for this photo session (as they are normally nocturnal) before letting them go. The session was short as I didn't want to negatively impact the frogs — they are delicate and have sensitive skin. This frog jumped onto the piece of wood I'd been using to photograph poison dart frogs and briefly grabbed onto the fungi to steady himself. That allowed me just enough time for a quick burst of shots before he jumped onto another plant and tucked himself away on a leaf. When I looked at the image later I was ecstatic — it looked as if it was presenting me with a beautiful red bloom. I was so happy to find that the focus was perfect and I'd been able to capture such a special moment."
- Challenges. "The thick rainforest canopy creates low-light situations and light with a lot of contrast, which makes it difficult to get a nice even exposure. When taking macro photographs, even the slightest movement on the part of the photographer (or subject) causes blur and this is something I avoid by using a sturdy tripod, shutter release cable and appropriate camera settings so I can get as much detail in the subject as possible."

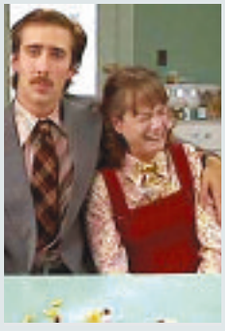
Full Metal Jacket

One of Stanley Kubrick's best, this Vietnam War drama lulls you in with its humour in the first half, then blows you away with its brutality in the second. Kubrick follows a group of Marines through boot-camp training, under the verbally abusive but hilariously profane watch of their demanding drill sergeant, played by R. Lee Ermey in the persona that would become his signature. Full Metal Jacket is raw and visceral in its details, yet surreal and dreamlike in its mood. And it provides an early glimpse of the intensity and immersion we've come to expect from Vincent D'Onofrio, committing himself completely here to the role of slow-witted private Gomer Pyle.



Raising Arizona

Found on the all-time favourites list of a few movie fanatics, this Coen brothers film is a great example of the off-kilter vibe that arose from their brief collaboration with then-cinematographer Barry Sonnenfeld. At times, this screwball comic romance feels like a live-action cartoon, with its odd characters and larger-than-life predicaments. The baby point-of-view shots alone give the movie both a playful energy and a genuine feeling of danger. It's silly and extremely stylized but it also works in its smaller moments, as evidenced by Nicolas Cage's quietly unhinged performance as a philosophical career criminal who promises to go straight and secure a baby for his yearning police-officer wife.

Moonstruck

Many have enjoyed the balance that director Norman Jewison and Oscar-winning screenwriter John Patrick Shanley strike here. This is a movie that's unabashedly old-fashioned and sweet but with a no-nonsense, slightly shaggy streak. Everyone feels what they feel so intensely, they must be under some sort of magical spell. And yet the film affectionately teases them for being the fools that they've become. Here's Cage again as a man full of impulses, driven by the passion he feels for the luminous Cher, who tries not to love him back because she's engaged to marry Cage's brother (Danny Aiello). Moonstruck is a romantic comedy for people who don't usually like romantic comedies.

Less Than Zero

A lurid depiction of the drugs and decadence of the time. Everyone on the other side of the San Fernando Valley was rich and sophisticated and stylishly tormented — at least through novelist Bret Easton Ellis' eyes. This early Robert Downey Jr. performance showed glimmers of the quick wit and emotional depth that continue to be his trademarks. Ed Lachmann's cinematography made sunny L.A. seem dangerous and seamy. And the film featured a great soundtrack, including The Bangles' insanely catchy cover of Hazy Shade of Winter and the LL Cool J classic Goin' Back to Cali.

Dirty Dancing

This is a nostalgic choice, admittedly. One could include something artsier and more respected like The Last Emperor, which won nine Oscars, including best picture. But looking back, which film left the most enduring mark on the culture, on the era? Of the five listed here, it's Dirty Dancing, far and away. Crowd-pleasing with an infectious energy and a vivid sense of place, this became an international phenomenon, and it's easy to see why. It's just a fun movie with great music and choreography. Jennifer Grey and Patrick Swayze are lovely together, even though on paper they make absolutely no sense as a couple. And we all learned that nobody puts Baby in a corner.

For actor Jeff Daniels, working on HBO's latest series The Newsroom has been nothing short of a major holiday.

"Every two weeks the new script would come in and (co-star) Emily Mortimer and I would say it was like Christmas morning," said the star recently in New York about the workplace drama premiering June 24th on HBO Canada. "I never changed a word, never questioned anything, I always said thank you and (read dialogue) word-for-word."

Created and written by Hollywood heavyweight Aaron Sorkin (The West Wing), The Newsroom explores the machinations of mainstream media — in particular, a bombastic but highly-respected cable news anchor.

In the style of classic movies like Broadcast News or Network, The Newsroom also embraces the trappings of conventional cable television — a sentimental experiment given Sorkin's most recent success with his Oscar-winning film The Social Network.

"People are nostalgic about not necessarily broadcast news the way it was done before. They're nostalgic about someone telling them the truth without spinning it," explained Daniels. "I've said that people are going to watch this and either jump out of their Barcalounger going, 'Hell, yeah' ... or throw a beer at the TV screen."

Lindsay Lohan

Lindsay Lohan gets caught napping

Lindsay Lohan was the cause of another 911 scare when paramedics were summoned to her hotel room Friday morning, where she was discovered unconscious by crew for her Elizabeth Taylor biopic, Liz & Dick, according to TMZ.

Lohan recovered and was back to work in a few hours, avoiding any hospitalization.

"Lindsay worked a grueling schedule the past few days," her rep says in a statement, citing Lohan's working a reported 85 hours over four days.

"She took a nap before shooting her final scene. Producers were concerned when she did not come out of her room and called paramedics as a precaution. Lindsay was examined and is fine, but did suffer some exhaustion and dehydration."

Seacrest tripped up by lover's on-air comment

Julianne Hough and Ryan Seacrest have been dating for a while, but apparently Hough is a little more comfortable with expressing her feelings for her man than vice versa.

When Hough was called into Seacrest's radio show for an interview last week, she ended the chat with, "All right, love you, bye," to which an audibly flustered Seacrest responded only, "Bye."

His colleagues, understandably, gave him a hard time about the omission.

Beckham circus comes to Vancouver

KATE WEBB
Metro Vancouver

Hundreds of fans waited for hours at Holt Renfrew in downtown Vancouver Friday to catch a glimpse of former Spice Girl Victoria Beckham after her plane was delayed by a lengthy customs search.

When Ms. Beckham finally arrived at 2:30 p.m., two hours after she was scheduled to appear, she posed for two-and-a-half minutes and then left as quickly as she came.

Courtney Hunter, who drove in from Langley and took the day off work just to see the waifish star, arrived before 11 a.m., but didn't seem to mind the wait.

"I've loved her since the Spice Girls but I'm a huge fashion fan, I went to school for that, so she's one of my style icons," she said of the visit.

"I know she's just going to be here for a few minutes, but it's kind of cool just to say that you saw her."

Beckham flew in to promote her namesake fashion line, which is carried only at Holt Renfrew in Canada.

More he said, she said in Drake vs. Brown battle

More details are emerging about the alleged altercation between Chris Brown and Drake at a New York club last week, according to TMZ.

Drake's camp has insisted the singer wasn't involved.

A released statement read, "Drake did not participate in any wrongdoing of any kind last night at W.i.P. He was on his way out of the club when the altercation began. He did not engage in any activity which resulted in injury to person or damage to property."

But Brown's lawyer claims to have evidence that Drake and his entourage were the aggressors.

So just what is that evidence?

A source claims a note exists that was sent from Drake's table to Brown's table reading, "I am f—ing the love of your life."

The alleged note refers to Brown's former and Drake's current lover, Rihanna.

Dads play a major role in the movie What to Expect When You're Expecting. They are also increasingly staying at home off-screen. LIONSGATE, MELISSA MOSELEY/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The gap between at-work and at-home dads

Debate. It isn't quite mommy wars, but there are issues for men who stay home with their children

Whether they say it out loud or acknowledge it at all, that work-home divide traditionally reserved for the mommy wars can also rear between dads who go off to the office every day and the kind in the trenches with the kids.

There are bound to be rifts, given the growing league of dads staying home at least part-time. But do the paths of work dads and home dads intertwine enough to make them care quite so deeply as the ladies? How exactly are they perceived by each other?

"To be a stay-at-home dad requires a lot of confidence in who you are," said Paxton Helms, 41, in Washington.

He became one about four years ago, when his daughter was three months old. A son followed and he now takes part-time contracts as an international development consultant, with flexible hours. His wife also works part-time. "The strangest thing that ever happened to me as a (stay-at-home dad) was riding on the Metro with both my kids and a guy asking me, 'So where's Mom?' I couldn't even think why in the world somebody would be asking me that question, so I couldn't even muster an answer," he said.

SUSPICION OVER WIVES, LAYOFFS

Other at-home dads worry about jealousy from working brethren. Or suspicion that they're out of work. And dads on both sides of the divide report the occasional cold shoulder.

"It seems that they try to avoid me or don't want to talk about what life is like for them," said dad-of-one Donald DeLong, 55, a Bloomfield Township, Mich., an attorney who acknowledges a "deeply rooted need to work and earn a living."

"When I do talk to them, the topics stay guy-safe. That is, sports, cars. After all we're both still guys."

Other at-home dads, those by choice or pushed out of the job market, said they've endured some snark, but they consider it more of a dad-on-dad discomfort than a divide.

Martin Weckerlein, 33, is among them. He simply doesn't have the time to care. He was a tank commander in the German military, then a bank worker for six years before he gave it up to be an at-home for his three kids, ages eight, three and nine months.

"When I'm with other dads who are my age, they tend to be pretty accepting and even curious as to how that works that we can afford me staying home, what I do during the day with the kids, and they say it must be nice to have that time," he said.

"When I am talking with men who aren't fathers or who are older, their questions usually focus on what my career goals are after I am done being home with my kids. They seem to assume this is only a temporary thing for our family, a pause in my career for a few years, instead of an investment in our family," Weckerlein explained.

THE STEREOTYPES

Yes, Mr. Mom comes up, the newest iteration in the shape of Chris Rock and his goofy band of dads with infants strapped to their chests in the movie What to Expect When You're Expecting.

It's been nearly 30 years since Michael Keaton was that guy on screen, setting the kitchen on fire and making his kids miserable in Mr. Mom, but the lingering moniker feels more like yesterday for Weckerlein and other at-home dads.

"I hate that phrase Mr. Mom. I can't imagine my wife going into the office and saying, 'Hi everyone, it's Mrs. Dad,"' said Dan Zevin, a humourist, at-home dad to two and author of a new book, Dan Gets a Minivan: Life at the Intersection of Dude and Dad.

The number of at-home dads who are primary caregivers for their children reached nearly two million in 2010, or one in 15 fathers, according to one estimate. Al Watts, president of the National At-Home Dad Network, believes a more accurate count is about seven million, using broader definitions that include part-time workers. That amounts to one-third of married fathers in the U.S.

Most, he said, want to be there, as opposed to the kind who never thought about it until the axe fell on their careers. And more often than women, they do earn a bit of income at the same time, he said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Statistics

A shift in the Canadian family fabric

Figures from Statistics Canada reveal a steady increase in the number of stay-at-home dads in recent years.

Last year, the majority of the 2.7 million couples with at least one child under 16 living at home were dual-earners. But one in five of those families had one employed parent and one stay-at-home parent.

Of those, 12 per cent, or about 61,000 families, saw the man stay home. That was up from 10 per cent in 2006, seven per cent in 1996 and four per cent in 1986.

"We decided it made sense if one of us were to stay home," he recalls.

Take your taste buds to Thailand with Pad Thai Salad

This recipe goes great with picnic fare. THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

The noodles, chicken and vegetables in this Easy Pad Thai Salad make it as natural as a tasty main course for a picnic.

If you're looking to trim some of the sodium from the dressing, use sodium-reduced soy sauce.

1. Soak noodles for 5 minutes in enough boiling water to cover. Drain and rinse under cold water until cool; drain well.

2. Meanwhile, whisk lime juice with ketchup, oil, soy sauce and sugar.

3. Toss drained noodles with chicken, bean sprouts, carrot, celery and red pepper. Add dressing and toss to coat.

4. Toss cilantro with green onion and peanuts, if using; sprinkle over salad just before serving. Serve with lime wedges on the side.

Ingredients

4 to 6 portions

- 250 g (8 oz) medium-width rice vermicelli noodles
- 75 ml (1/3 cup) fresh lime juice
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) each ketchup and canola oil
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) soy sauce
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) granulated sugar
- 750 ml (3 cups) cooked chicken breast, sliced into strips
- 500 ml (2 cups) bean sprouts
- 250 ml (1 cup) each thinly sliced carrot, celery and red pepper
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) each chopped fresh cilantro leaves, green onion and chopped peanuts (optional)
- Lime wedges

What can I do with old BBQ propane tanks?
Luke of Toronto

We're well into barbecue season, something you'll know if you've made the annual mistake of running out of propane.

Propane tanks are refillable but sometimes you might need to get rid of an old one.

If so, remember that they are recyclable.

In Toronto, propane tanks are considered household hazardous waste, so check out Toronto.ca/garbage to find a drop-off depot near you.

Expired refillable propane tanks can be taken to most landfills, transfer stations, and many propane dealers. The tanks must be empty.

Unfortunately, non-refillable, single-use tanks like those camping propane containers are no longer accepted at most landfills and transfer stations.

It turns out that it's too difficult and expensive to recycle them — something to consider if you're upgrading to a new model of a camping stove.

After the eating is done, there is still work to be had. ISTOCK PHOTOS

Some metal recyclers take disposable propane tanks, but they should be empty with the valves removed.

If you haven't already, make the switch to refillable propane tanks.

And never place a pressurized container into your garbage. When getting your barbecue ready for the season, why not clean the grill with some simple eco-friendly ingredients?

Once a year, remove the grill from the barbecue, sprinkle baking soda or washing soda all over the grates, and then immerse it in a tub of warm water.

Note: washing soda is more caustic then baking soda, so you might want to use gloves.

Soak the grill overnight, if possible. Scrub it with a sponge and give it a final wash with liquid Castile soap or eco-friendly dish soap. Rinse and dry.

Duff Dixon took on the big-box stores and emerged a winner. Today, with 51,000 square feet of grills, smokers, accessories and gadgets for the outdoor chef, Ontario Gas BBQ in Concord is the largest barbecue store in the world.

"It's a real feather in our Canadian caps — err, toques!" Duff says with a laugh.

The affable President and CBN (Chief BBQ Nerd) has weathered the storm of the recent world recession and off shore products taking away market share.

"It's always hard trying to stay ahead of the competition but I firmly believe if you enter into a category you must command and dominate it in your trading area."

Duff's advice to someone thinking about starting a new business?

"There are very few new ideas, just twists on what has worked in the past. If you think you know it all, you are wrong. Don't be afraid to ask for help and always trust your gut feeling. Your morals and your gut will tell you if it's the right thing to do or not."

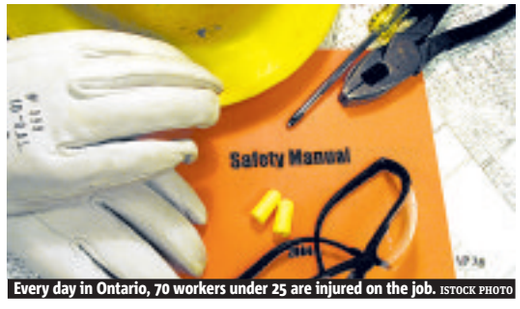
Speak up and be safe: Don't take risks at work

Workplace safety.
New and young workers are four times more likely to be injured during the first month on the job



Every day in Ontario, 70 workers under 25 are injured on the job. ISTOCK PHOTO

With summer here and school ending, you're ready to make some extra cash at a summer job. But did you know that new and young workers are four times more likely to be injured during the first month on the job than at any other time?

Every day in Ontario alone, 70 workers under age 25 are injured on the job, and some lose their lives.

"As young workers, you have rights under the law that protect you," says George Gritziotis, the chief prevention officer at Ontario's Ministry of Labour. "Know your rights and responsibilities. Don't gamble with your life because unlike a card game, everyone loses. Many times, people think it could never happen to them but the truth is, it does. By then it's too late. The tragic thing is that it's all preventable."

Gritziotis points to clues that reveal the potential for an unsafe workplace: you haven't been trained properly. You're working without direct supervision. Safety shortcuts are used to save time. Containers of chemicals aren't labelled.

Employers also have responsibilities to you, the ministry says. Employers must provide information, instruction and supervision to protect you.

They must also tell you about any hazards in the work that you do, and provide necessary equipment, materials and protective devices.

Tell your supervisor if you see any hazards or violations of workplace health and safety law regulations.

"Remember, in the workplace, there is no such thing as a dumb question, especially when you're asking how to do a job that you've never done before," Gritziotis continued.

"Would you rather be permanently disfigured, or lie in a hospital bed for the rest of the summer, because you thought it was too much trouble to practice your rights?"

NBA. Miami takes 2-1 lead over Oklahoma City and is two wins away from a title

Game 3

Heat	Thunder
91	85

LeBron James and the Heat remember the pain from a year ago.

They needed two wins for a title and never got another, their superstar player coming up small in the biggest moments — a finals failure for which James has accepted the blame.

He seems determined not to let it happen again.

James had 29 points and 14 rebounds, and the Miami Heat took a 2-1 lead in the NBA finals with a 91-85 victory over the Oklahoma City Thunder on Sunday night. Dwyane Wade had 25 points, seven rebounds and seven assists for the Heat, who were in this same position through three games last year, then didn't win again against the Dallas Mavericks.

"We carry that pain with us," the Heat's Chris Bosh said. "We think about it every day and that really helps us to succeed in this series."

James' poor performance was part of the problem then, but he seems on top of his game this time.

His three-pointer sent the Heat to the fourth quarter with the lead and he scored five straight Miami points when the Heat were building just enough cushion to hold off another late flurry by the Thunder.

Kevin Durant had 25 points for the Thunder, but picked up his fourth foul in the third quarter and had to sit when they seemed to have control of the game. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Golf. Simpson rises above past champions

Webb Simpson won the U.S. Open and put two more names into the graveyard of champions.

Overlooked for so much of the week, Simpson emerged on a fog-filled Sunday at the Olympic Club with four birdies around the turn and a tough chip out of a hole to the right of the 18th green that he converted into par for a 2-under 68.

He finished at 1-over 281, and it was enough to outlast former U.S. Open champions Jim Furyk and Graeme McDowell.

Furyk bogeyed two of his last three holes. McDowell had a 25-foot birdie on the 18th to force a playoff, but it never had a chance.

Olympic is known as the "graveyard of champions" because proven major winners who were poised to win the U.S. Open have lost to the underdog. One of those was Arnold Palmer in 1966, when he lost a seven-shot lead on the back nine.

Perhaps it was only fitting that the 25-year-old Simpson went to Wake Forest on an Arnold Palmer scholarship.

"Arnold has been so good to me," Simpson said. "Just the other day, I read that story and thought about it. He's meant so much to me and Wake Forest. Hopefully, I can get a little back for him and make him smile."

Star attraction lives up to billing as Portugal advances

Netherlands bows out. Ronaldo's two goals end Dutch's championship hopes, while Germany finishes atop Group B

Portugal and Germany advanced to the European Championship quarter-finals Sunday, with the tournament's star attraction finally coming alive.

Cristiano Ronaldo scored twice, and saw two shots strike the post, in an outstanding display as Portugal came from behind to win 2-1 against the Netherlands. The 2010 World Cup finalist exited Euro 2012 after three straight losses.

Germany also progressed as Group B winner, beating Denmark 2-1 to complete a perfect three-win record.

Portugal will play the Czech Republic in the first quarter-final in Warsaw on Thursday. "Now, everything is possible," Ronaldo said.

Germany faces Greece in Gdansk on Friday for a match with political overtones as Euro 2012 plays out amid a financial crisis in the eurozone.

Ronaldo arrived at Euro 2012 amid doubts over his record at major tournaments, and despite a prolific scoring season with Spanish champion Real Madrid.

The Portugal captain disappointed in his first two matches in Ukraine — and gave an emphatic response Sunday.

"Ronaldo got so much criticism in the last game and he is back now," Netherlands coach Bert van Marwijk said. "That is how fast things can change."

The Dutch took an 11th-minute lead, chasing the two-goal victory they needed to have any chance of advancing. Captain Rafael van der Vaart scored with a curling left-foot shot.

When Ronaldo's shot five minutes later brushed the outside of a post, his rueful expression suggested he still lacked confidence.

His defiant swagger returned after scoring in the 28th, timing his run perfectly before slotting the ball past Netherlands goalkeeper Maarten Stekelenburg.

Portugal then dominated against a lineup set up to attack and struggling to defend.

Ronaldo scored the winner in the 74th, calmly finishing off a rapid counterattack. He was denied a hat-trick when a 25-metre shot rebounded back off a post.

Germany was always favoured to progress from the toughest Euro 2012 group, yet endured a nervous spell in the second half before securing its place in the last eight.

Lukas Podolski, playing his 100th international for Germany, scored in the 19th minute in Lviv, finishing a chance created by Thomas Mueller and Mario Gomez.

Denmark equalized within five minutes, as Michael Krohn-Dehli rose in a crowded goalmouth to nod in Nicklas Bendtner's headed pass.

The second-ranked Germans restored order in the 80th minute when stand-in defender Lars Bender scored from a pass by Mesut Ozil into the heart of the Danish penalty area.

'I'm not going to win the Euros on my own': Rooney

Built up as the player to strengthen England's attacking threat, Wayne Rooney is trying to downplay the impact he can make at the European Championship.

The striker has been a frustrated fan for England's first two matches, sitting out the draw against France and victory over Sweden because of suspension.

Now he's preparing to walk straight back into the starting lineup for the Group D finale against Ukraine on Tuesday, with coach Roy Hodgson playing up how he can make "life a little bit easier" for the team.

A draw against the co-hosts would be enough to steer England into the quarter-finals and Rooney would prefer if the attention wasn't on him.

"I don't put that pressure on myself," Rooney said Sunday. "There are 23 players in the squad and there's pressure on us all.... I'm not going to win the Euros on my own. There are 23 players who are going to contribute to try to help us win the tournament or go as far as we can."

Rooney was banned by UEFA for kicking a Montenegro player in the final Euro 2012 qualifier in October.

Rasmus powers Jays to sweep

Colby Rasmus homered and drove in three runs as the Toronto Blue Jays swept the Philadelphia Phillies with a 6-2 inter-league victory on Sunday afternoon.

Left-hander Brett Cecil made a winning return to Toronto by holding the Phillies to five hits, no walks and two runs while striking out five in five innings. Cecil (1-0) was making his first start of the season for the Jays after being demoted to the minors at the end of spring training.

NASCAR. Dale Earnhardt Jr. back in victory lane

After four years and 143 races — the agonizing near-misses and all those questions about when he might finally win again — Dale Earnhardt Jr. was alone in his car, comfortably ahead of the field and only a few minutes from victory.

"That was the worst feeling, riding around there with 15 laps to go, wondering what was going to happen — how you were going to lose," Earnhardt said. "Those laps couldn't go by fast enough."

There was no falling short this time. Earnhardt held on smoothly at Michigan International Speedway for his first NASCAR Sprint Cup victory since 2008, and he did it in convincing fashion, beating Tony Stewart by 5.393 seconds Sunday. When the black Chevrolet with the green No. 88 crossed the finish line, Earnhardt ended a streak of 143 Cup races without a win and gave his legions of fans a thrilling reward for all their support and patience.

"They stayed loyal," he said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You may be tempted to make a decision about your family life that will mean many major changes over the next 12 months. Wait.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Take extra care when dealing with money. The approaching new moon may tempt you to take the kind of risks that you would usually strive to avoid

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Other people may be dragging their feet and making life difficult for you but there's good news too.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You may have been feeling vulnerable of late but when the Sun moves into your birth sign on Wednesday your confidence will return with a vengeance.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. When the Sun changes signs the day after tomorrow you will be more concerned with inner issues than what is going on in the world around you

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You may feel that a change of direction is necessary, and you may be right, but don't make it anything too drastic.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. A change of direction is very much on the cards – if you're decisive.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Major decisions concerning your financial situation will have to be made over the next few days.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Even if you are the most logical Sagittarius who ever lived your emotions will lead you today.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. If you don't want to come out and play today that's fine – you are under no obligation to socialize just because friends or work colleagues think you should.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. You have achieved much in recent weeks, so don't spoil it now by taking silly risks

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. One of the best times of the year is about to begin but it will be even better if you resolve a domestic situation that has been sapping your emotional energy for too long
